New Artists Coming to Muskegon

Final artists for this year's 2017 Muskegon Lakeshore Art Festival have been selected. "We are pleased that this year, jurors selected local favorites as well as up and coming artists who will bring new style and energy to this event. Approximately 110 new artists will be participating for the first time," according to Carla Flanders, Lakeshore Art Festival Director. Over 300 artists and crafters from all over the country have been selected to showcase and sell their art July 7th and 8th in downtown Muskegon.

A jury of artists and craft professionals review each application to verify all pieces are unique and handmade by the artist. "Careful attention is made to make sure there is variety and diversity of items displayed throughout the show," says Carla Flanders. The focus of the Lakeshore Art Festival is to present one-of-a-kind art to attendees that is available to purchase, not just for display.

New this year is a Student Art Showcase for young artists (K-12 grade) that will be displaying and selling art for the first time in their lives! This special area has been organized in partnership with the Muskegon Area Intermediate School District. Additionally, the show has created openings for Emerging Artists. These limited spaces are reserved for artists just learning how to apply to and become part of a large scale art event.

The festival will continue to host "fine art" in beautiful Hackley Park, while handmade crafts will be displayed on beautiful Western Avenue and 4th Street. Artists travel from as far away as Texas and California to participate in the destination event which has been named one of the "Best Small Town Art Shows in America" according to ArtFairCalendar.com.

The Lakeshore Art Festival includes street performers, a children's area, music and food. Additional NEW 2017 festival features will be announced at a later date. For more information go to lakeshoreartfestival.org.
